++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Best weather today in the south and east.

Today:
A fair amount of cloud around today, but also some bright or sunny spells at times, best of the sunshine in the southwest and northeast. Mostly dry for many areas by the afternoon as well. Breezy in the north.

Tonight:
Variable, and often large amounts of cloud with fog patches forming across southern UK. Turning windier across Scotland with rain, heavy at times, developing in the far north later.

Thursday:
Windy in the north with spells of rain spreading across Scotland reaching parts of northern England and Northern Ireland later. Elsewhere, breezy with a mixture of cloud and sunny spells.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Rain at first over central parts easing southwards. Cool mornings in the north and more rain in the northwest on Saturday spreading southeastwards through the weekend. Elsewhere dry, often cloudy.
